Quest relocates to Henley-on-Thames

Quest, the major IT infrastructure supplier in the survey & mortgage valuation, Home Report and Energy Performance Certificate (EPC) markets, has relocated its headquarter operations to Henley-on-Thames. As from today, Quest's management, technical support and administration teams will be based within the campus of its parent company, Landmark Information Group, at The Smith Centre, on the prestigious Fairmile in Henley.

The entire team is relocating from offices in Bracknell, where it has been based for over 16 years. As a result of Landmark's acquisition of Quest in July 2007, the relocation marks another key step in the integration of the two businesses. In addition, the facilities at The Smith Centre will support Quest's growth plans this year and into 2010 as it further extends its reach into key markets.

Comments James Sherwood-Rogers, managing director, Quest: "The move from Bracknell to Henley heralds a new era for Quest. It's great to have both businesses fully integrated into one location. We also look forward to welcoming our customers to the new site over the coming months."

The company's product architecture and development team will continue to operate from its offices in Godalming, Surrey.
